GREENSBORO TELEGRAM.

VOL. VI. NO. 137. GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1900. Price Five Cents

EIGHTY THOUSAND NECESSARY.

ADMIRALS AGREE ON THAT FIGURE.

No Less Than That Number of Troops Can Command the Situation—Artillery Duel is Now in Progress, but the Chinese Have Their Guns Well Masked—Russia Said to be Getting Ready to Manage Manchuria.

By Wire to the Telegram.

London, July 12—A dispatch from Yokohoma says that while no decision has been announced it is certain Japan will send nearly fifty thousand troops to China. The press agrees that the despatch of so large a force is necessary in the interest of humanity, but asserts that in a large measure the responsibility for trouble rests upon Russia and Germany because of their arbitrary action in China.

The latest talk in the military clubs today is that Tien-Tsin cannot be held and that the allies are preparing to retreat. All the women and children have been sent away and there is little hope left that the foreign ministers are alive. According to a Tien-Tsin dispatch, a private letter from Pekin of 24th said that the ministers then had only three days' food supply. The dispatch also says that Prince Tuan is crazy.

A Port Arthur dispatch says that 40,000 Chinese troops are said to be devastating Manchuria, and that Russia is preparing to send an army into the province. Russia is said to have notified the powers of her intention.

ARTILLERY DUEL.

Chefoo, July 12—An artillery duel is proceeding at Tien-Tsin. The Chinese guns are so masked that the allies find it difficult to locate them.

80,000 TROOPS NECESSARY.

Paris, July 12.—The foreign office has received a despatch from Taku stating that the admirals have decided that eighty thousand troops are necessary for the advance upon Pekin. Twenty thousand of that number will be required to garrison Taku and Tien-Tsin and maintain communication.

Voyron has been appointed to the command of the French contingent. It is learned that Japan will send to China a field Marshal who outranks the officers of the other powers. This would settle the question of the supreme command, unless, as suggested here, Russia should send an officer of similar rank. It is feared that friction will yet result on this point.

GERMANY WILL SEND A DIVISION.

Berlin, July 12—The Cologn Gazette says that Germany will send to China with the marine brigade, eight infantry battallions of eight hundred men each, and four batteries of artillery, also a strong force of engineers and pioneers, thus forming a complete army division.

Associated Press.

London, July 12, 3:30 a. m.—The Chinese situation again bears a most ominous aspect. Eighteen days ago Sir Robert Hart dispatched his last message, declaring that the situation was desperate and since then no word has come from the Europeans in Pekin. According to The Daily Mail's Shanghai correspondent, Li Hung Chang has received an imperial decree ordering his immediate departure for Pekin, presumably to break the news of the Pekin tragedy to the European powers, and, in his usual role of negotiator with Europe in difficult matters, to endeavor to act as mediator and to avert the vengeance of the powers. To add to this grimness of the suggestion, all advices from Tien-Tsin tend to confirm the reports of the perilous conditions of the allied forces and belie the optimist Chinese rumors. Unless re-enforcements speedily reach Tien-Tsin another disaster may be expected. The Daily Mail's Tien-Tsin correspondent, telegraphing on July 5th, says: "The situation is about as bad as it can well be. I only trust that we shall not soon want relieving ourselves. A forward movement is impossible. From 30,000 to 40,000 troops are wanted, and there are only 10,000 here. The troops are working well together, but it is inconvenient that there is no supreme commander. In some quarters the feeling is, 'Let us rescue Pekin and then clear out in favor of Russia.'"

Other Tien-Tsin correspondents say that no advance is possible until September 1st, and that explanations are being asked by the papers here of the tardy action of Japan in sending troops, since it is known that she was ready and willing to send them and that Russia raised no objection to her doing so. It is hinted that a difficulty arose as to the manner in which Japan was to be recouped for her heavy outlay. Rumors are current that Japan demanded the cession of a Chinese port.

The Russian papers report that the Boxers are ravishing Manchuria and have damaged 60 miles of the railway, threatening Telin and Kirlin, while Port Arthur and Neu Chwang are said to be endangered. Russia, therefore, has notified the powers of her intention to dispatch a large military force to Manchuria.

All kinds of stories come from Shanghai, which it is impossible to verify. It is stated that the Boxers have murdered the chancellor of the Pekin University and sixty of the members of his family and retainers. A confidential officer of Gen. Young Lu, disguised as a Boxer, is reported to have crept into Prince Tuan's tent while the Prince was sleeping with the intention of stabbing him. He was caught by the sentries, so the story goes and decapitated on the spot. His head was sent, with Prince Tuan's compliments to Yung Lu, as a warning to him to beware.

The French consul at Shanghai had news that the Chinese perfect at Moukden has himself ordered the killing of the Catholic bishop, Gullion, in his yamen. Besides Bishop Gullion, Fathers Cruonet, Corbet, Borguis and Veuillenot and two sisters of the French mission and numerous native Christians were massacred.

From Canton comes a report of large desertions from a Chinese regiment at Kaio Chu and of a sanguinary riot between German troops and Boxers, many of the latter being killed. Both at Shanghai and Canton apprehension exists that these evidences of a widespread native rebellion indicate the necessity for immediate measures on the part of the powers.

It is stated that Germany intends to send to China 10,000 to 15,000 men well equipped with guns.

SOUTHSIDES STILL CHAMPIONS.

They Lower the World's Record and Continue to Hold the Belt—Other Winners.

Special Dispatch to the Telegram.

Wilmington, July 12.—The Southside Hose Company, of Greensboro, still holds the belt which designates this as the champion reel team of the State. The 300-yard championship race was won by the Southsides in 46 2-5 seconds.

This is the lowest record that has ever been made anywhere. The Southsiders won last year in 49 seconds. Ther record is not only the lowestever made, but no other company has ever won the belt twice in succession.

Goldsboro, Eclipse, No. 1, took first prize in the horse hose wagon contest. Newbern, Button No. 2, took second, and Wilson Hose Company No 3, third prize.

Asheville won the hook and ladder race, Winston taking second prize.

Winston No. 1 won first prize in the engine contest. Rocky Mount came second.

BURIED ALIVE THREE DAYS.

When Disinterred Maude Matthews' First Word Was "Hello."

By Wire to the Telegram

Lexington, Vt., July 12.—Maude Matthews, a 16-year-old girl, was put under a hypnotic spell Monday, after which she was buried. She was not disturbed until today, when she was disinterred. After being brought from under the hypnotic influence her first word was "hello."

Miss Matthews says she feels no ill effects from her sojourn under ground.

Information was received in New York this morning from Cairo that one of the train robbers had been captured, another had been arrested on suspicion and another was being pursued by a posse.

The Methodist Board of Missions at New York today received a cablegram from Rev. Brown at Chefoo, stating that George N. Drury and wife are in Pekin, also Edward N. Lowery and wife.

FIRST DAY OF THE CAMPAIGN.

WARM TIME IN SUMNER TOWNSHIP.

Gen. Glenn's Opponent Failed to Appear. Republicans Substituted Abuse for Argument--Democratic Candidates Made Good Speeches--Mr. Douglas Abused the Dispensary.

Reported for the Telegram.

The candidates opened their joint canvass at Hodgin's Store, in Sumner township, yesterday. Speaking commencing about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The time agreed upon for speaking was five minutes each for the county and twenty-five minutes for each of the legislative candidates, with five minutes rejoinder.

The county candidates announced themselves in the following order: For sheriff—J. F. Jordan, Democrat, followed by Carl Wheeler, Republican, for register of deeds—A. G. Kirman, Democrat, followed by R. E. Hodgin, Republican; for county treasurer—G. H. McKinney, Democrat. Dr. Stanton, the Republican candidate, was not present, but was announced by R. D. Douglas.

Gen. J. D. Glenn, Democratic candidate for the State Senate, opened the discussion among the legislative candidates, and here the music began. It was the hottest day I have ever seen on the first day of the campaign, and promises to grow warmer. All the Democratic legislative candidates are good speakers. The other side hardly has enough to make it interesting. R. D. Douglas is the only one on the Republican side who pretends to make a speech. He does very well for a young man in so bad a cause.

Gen. Glenn announced that he was a candidate without any solicitation on his part and expressed his regret at the absence of his competitor, Mr. Starbuck, who was said to be absent on account of sickness. Lawyer Meekins was sent out to take his place. Gen. Glenn explained the amendment and said the Democrats had not and did not intend to disfranchise any white man. In the dark days of reconstruction the Republicans did disfranchise all the good white men who had been thought worthy to hold office. He said his opponent, Mr. Starbuck, was a revenue officer, and expected to be elected, if he had any such expectations, by the votes of office holders and negroes. He named as office holders who were either candidates for office or chairmen of committees on the Republican side S. B. Adams, A. E. Holton, Tyre Glenn, C. B Thompson and several others.

Gen. Glenn said that Lincoln was opposed to negroes voting and holding office for the reason that they were incompetent and incapable. The speaker asserted that every white man would be allowed to vote under the amendment and said that about 80 per cent. of the negroes would be disfranchised. He asked the Republicans why they were fighting the amendment so hard if they really thought it was unconstitutional.

Lawyer Meekins, representing Mr. Starbuck, came next. He had been all over the world and said our people were less influenced by prejudice and harder to deceive than any people he had ever seen. If he could have heard the comments of the crowd after his speech he would have been more thoroughly convinced than ever that our people could not be deceived, at least by him. He acused Democrats of telling lies and doing all kinds of meanness, but admitted that he himself had been a Democrat until defeated for sheriff of Tyrrell county.

Wescott Roberson, Democratic candidate for the House, made a strong, scholarly and chaste speech, in which he urged the adoption of the amendment and vividly and pathetically portrayed the horrors of negro rule in the East. He read a long list of prominent North Carolina Republicans who are supporting the amendment, including Judge Starbuck, Hon. Thomas Settle, Prof. McIver, of Chatham; T. M. Argo and ex-Postmaster Shaffer, of Raleigh, and T. W. Mason and son, of Chapel Hill.

R. D. Douglas, one of the Republican candidates for the House, posed as the loving friend and special guardian of the poor white man. He poured out his wrath upon the dispensary, saying it was a disgrace to Greensboro and Guilford county. He did not tell of his remorse at helping to bring this "disgrace" upon the city and the county, nor did he say anything about standing up in a mass-meeting in the court house, and as a young man, asking to be allowed to raise his voice in behalf of a dispensary in Greensboro in order that the morals of the city might be improved.

Prof. T. E. Whitaker took the stand and literally took the hide off of Meekins, rubbing salt in the raw places. He showed conclusively, from history, that the Republicans are the last people on earth to prate about disfranchising anybody. He referred to the large number of negro office holders in the eastern part of the State, giving places and numbers in office.

Mr. Woods announced his candidacy and denounced the amendment as an infamous measure.

So the first day of the campaign ended, and although in a Republican precinct, Republicans admitted that their candidates weakened their cause.

NORTH CAROLINA RAILROAD.

Stockholders and Directors Met Here Today in Annual Session.

The stockholders and directors of the North Carolina Railroad Company held their annual meetings in Greensboro today. Both meetings were well attended, a majority of the stock being represented by proxy.

The stockholders met in the county court house at 12:20 o'clock and were in session about an hour. Mr. J. R. Mendenhall, of this city, was made chairman, with Mr. J. P. Albright, of Burlington, as secretary of the meeting.

A report of the proxy committee showed 859 shares of stock represented.

Charles A. Cook, the State's proxy, named the following as the board of directors on the part of the State for the ensuing year: John S. Armstrong, of Wilmington; V. S. Lusk, of Asheville; William Gilchrist, of Wilmington; W. T. O'Brien and J. C. Angier, of Durham; Eugene Holt, of Burlington, and Robert D. Douglas, of Greensboro. Messrs. Holt and Douglas are the new members of the board.

The private stockholders elected the following directors: Gen. R. F. Hoke, of Raleigh; Hugh MacRae, of Wilmington, and General Benehan Cameson, of Stagsville.

E. C. Smith, of Raleigh, and P. B. Ruffin, of Hillsboro, were appointed members of the finance committee

Dr. D. W. C. Benbow, J. W. Finch and J. P. Allbright were made a committee on proxies for next year.

Some minor changes were made in the by-laws as to the calling of meetings, etc.

The directors met in the reading room of the Hotel Guilford this afternoon at 3 o'clock and were in session when the Telegram went to press.

The officers were re-elected as follows:

President—John S. Armstrong, Wilmington.

Secretary and Treasurer—Spencer B. Adams, Greensboro.

Attorneys—Cooke & Greene, Warrenton.

The affairs of the company were found to be in a very satisfactory condition. The business is being well and economically managed, and expenses are being decreased.

The debt which has been hanging over the company is also being decreased.

COL. BOYD APPOINTED JUDGE.

RECEIVED HIS COMMISSION TODAY.

The End of a Unique Fight—Appointment Gives General Satisfaction—The New Judge Has Made Many Friends During His Official Residence in Washington.

Special Dispatch to the Telegram.

Washington, July 12.—Hon. James E. Boyd, at present Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, today received from President McKinley his commission as United States district judge for the Western District of North Carolina.

Whilst the newly appointed judge is being overwhelmed with congratulations, expressions of regret are heard on every hand at his retirement from official life in Washington. His conduct of his official duties as Assistant Attorney-General of the United States has brought to Judge Boyd a host of friends who admire him for his great ability, and esteem him for his integrity and faithful performance of public duty.

Judge Boyd will qualify next Monday.

It has been known by some of Judge Boyd's intimate friends in Greensboro for some time that be would be tendered the judgeship, and a few days ago it was learned that he had agreed to accept the appointment. His appointment will give general satisfaction throughout the district.

His friends in Greensboro are especially gratified. It is presumed that Judge and Mrs. Boyd will soon return to their home in this city.

The appointment of Judge Boyd marks the end of one of the most interesting and unique political fights in the history of this country. Through the influence of Pritchard, Ewart was kept in office quite a while after it was almost known for a certainty that he could not be confirmed by the Senate.

Senator Pritchard could have received the appointment at any time he might have desired it, though from the beginning of the fight on Ewart he stated that he would not accept. In addition to Judge Boyd, others mentioned in connection with the appointment were Judge S. B. Adams, District Attorney Holton and Congressman Linney.

BAD FIRE IN WINSTON.

Tobacco and Box Factory and Lumber Burned--Greensboro Offered Assistance, But it Was Not Needed--Report Caused Excitement Here.

Special Dispatch to the Telegram.

Winston, July 12—J. E. Shelton's tobacco box factory, on Church street, together with a lot of lumber, and N. S. and T. J. Wilson's tobacco factory were destroyed by fire this morning. The fire started in the boiler room of Shelton's factory and made a big blaze.

Shelton's loss is $5,000, with no insurance. The Messrs. Wilson carried some insurance.

The news of the fire caused much excitement in Greensboro. It was first reported that Reynolds', Brown Brothers' and Shelton's factories were all on fire, that it was the work of incendiaries, and that a riot was imminent. Later it was reported that two negroes had been killed.

Remembering Winston's former disastrous experience with the fire fiend, it was but natural that the report should cause great excitement here.

Mayor pro tem. Hunter authorized Mr. F. N. Taylor, chief of the Greensboro Fire Department, to offer Winston assistance. This was done a few minutes after the report of the fire reached Greensboro. Chief Hanes wired the thanks of Winston for the proffered assistance, saying the fire was under control and could be managed without outside help.

The Greensboro firemen stood ready to render their best service, and the Southern Railway was prepared to transport the men and apparatus on a moment's notice.

DESPERATE POPULISTS.

They Are the Extremest of All—Democrats Not to be Forced—North Carolina Gems at Paris—Business Enterprises.

Special Correspondence of the Telegram.

Raleigh, July 12—It is decided that a local firm, which made the pedestal, shall place the Vance statute in position. The work will be done at night.

The State charters the Collins Gin company and the LaGrange Manufacturing company, both of Lenoir county; also the Cliff Investment company of Burke county. The LaGrange company has a charter which permits it to do almost any thing.

The greatest gem expert in the United States, George F. Kunz, writes from Paris that the North Carolina gem exhibit, made by the agricultural department attracts a great deal of attention and that he has no doubt it will make the desired impression upon the judges of award.

The Bank of Morganton notifies the corporation commission that it has ceased to be a State bank and has become a national bank.

The attendance of the 12th annual State tournament and convention of firemen at Wilmington is breaking the record. The most interesting events of the tournament occurred today.

It is claimed that the fusion leaders are plotting to enable those negroes who cannot register to vote anyhow. The fusion leaders may plot all they like but they cannot force this. This is one year when the Democrats in this State are not going to be forced. The Republicans of any judgment see that the policy of those of their party who are inciting negroes to assault registrars of election and commit other crimes is simply suicidal. The Populists are more desperate than the Republicans. Democrats say that the most extreme anti-amendment men they now find are the "Butler Populists," men whom the Senator leads by the nose.

THE BATTLE GROUND PROJECT.

Its Gratifying Growth in Power and Popularity—Three New Acquisitions to Its Ranks, The Telegram, The Merchants and Manufacturers' Association and Dr. George A. Mebane.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

General Boynton is, as we are informed, chairman of the United States Commissioners of National Parks, and is deservedly held in high esteem by the government. He not only kindly and promptly accepted our invitation to address us on the Fourth, but was anxious to visit the grounds. He expressed both gratification and astonishment at the work here accomplished.

The most ancient and honorable of American Revolutionary associations, The Society of the Cincinnati, canceled a previous appointment to meet elsewhere in order to join with us and add to the success and enjoyment of our annual celebration. This they did, and for it we thank them. We suggest that they can, perhaps, do no better than to make Greensboro their annual rendezvous hereafter.

The above is unmistakable evidence of our growing importance in the public eye.

But, Mr. Editor, self-reliance is the sure basis of success with everybody and everything. Our triumph has been achieved through, and our dependence upon, North Carolina; upon individual North Carolinians, and pre-eminently upon the City of Greensboro. Our excellent daily—the Telegram—recently issued a Battle Ground edition of sixteen pages that is in every respect most creditable to its able editor and to Greensboro. The appearance within the columns of the Telegram of the full text of Gen. Boynton's speech on the afternoon of its delivery at the Battle Ground was a piece of journalistic enterprise and dispatch hitherto unequaled, so far as I remember, in this section.

In the intelligent and marked inspiration in this patriotic cause of the editor of the Telegram lies much of promise, in my opinion, for both the Battle Ground project and for the fame of the community and State.

The opportune and polite attention paid the visiting guests of the Battle Ground and the members of the Society of the Cincinnati and their admirable entertainment by our Merchants and Manufacturers' Club, as a whole, and particularly by one of its members—to wit Dr. George A. Mebane, places all concerned under great obligations to that association and to that gentleman. Dr. Mebane's course was unique in its generosity and most pleasantly marks an epoch in Greensboro's history.

Let me add my unqualified endorsement of the popular sense, that the Battle Ground Association has never known in its experience a more satisfactory and delightful a celebration than that of the Fourth of July, 1900.

The only mistake made by the management, so far as I know—lay in our failure to have had three or more speakers' stands instead of one. No man's voice can reach one third of the people annually assembled at Guilford Court House Battle Ground.

The old guard were at their posts, of course, as usual, but more cannot now be said and less ought not have been.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH M. MOREHEAD.

SLANDER AGAINST AYCOCK.

John R. Morris Explains the Whole Thing —A New Kind of a Lie.

Jno. R. Morris in the Charlotte Observer.

I, unlike many Democrats, feel kindly disposed toward the leading Republicans who circulated the fiction through Davidson county that Charlie Aycock, the Democratic candidate for Governor, was known, in Goldsboro, his home, as a drunkard and a bad man.

The Daughters of the Confederacy, in Goldsboro, utilized the American eagle so as to make him scream for Jeff Davis on the 4th of July. This was, indeed, highly proper since the Declaration of Independence was written by Tom Jefferson, a Southern man, and signed with the sword of George Washington, another Southern man. These noble women spread a feast in one of the large tobacco warehouses of the town and the receipts therefrom were applied to the Jefferson Davis' monument fund.

At night when I entered the warehouse, where the rebel feast was spread, old friends approached and asked if I had been in the up-country where the report was being circulated that Charles was a drunkard. When I told them that I had been in the up country and had heard the reports, their indignation was furious. Senator Frank Daniels, Senator from Wayne, and law partner of Charles, was the last man who inquired of me if such a lie were, indeed, circulated against his partner. The Senator wanted to trace the lie to its source and bring legal action for slander against the authors. I thought that he looked at me a little queerly when I calmly declined to mingle a sense of indignation with his outraged feelings. In fact, folks in Goldsboro were furiously indignant while I went among them smiling.

An untrue statement must have the element of malice aforethought to make it a positive lie. All malice aforethought don't murder.

While Charles Aycock is one of the purest, most upright and exemplary of my Greensboro townsmen, yet when I consider that this fiction was started by the Republicans of Davidson county I feel that it was justified.

If I were highly critical I would call the Davidson county fiction a logical lie, since it was natural, after Aycock's speech in Lexington, the county seat of Davidson, for the bewildered remnant of the Republican party, in Davidson, while in quest of the dynamic force that impelled the annihilation, to conclude that nothing short of the concealed lightning in a quart of moonshine grog could have wrought the havoc.

It is possible that this bewildered remant, in its further painstating researches, along strictly logical lines, may, in the widening breath of its schorarly generosity, withdraw the specific charge in question, substituting instead as a more satisfying conclusion, that the delerium tremens deportment of an inebriate asylum had made a sudden, predatory and destructive descent.

Don't be indignant, brethern, at these leading white Republicans of Davidson.

They are merely natural born logicians; and, since the Democratic party represents the intelligence of North Carolina, in contradistinction to the ignorance of negroes, it can't afford to make war on the accomplishments of scholarship.

How the Cleveland Cotton Mills is Settling The Labor Problem.

Charity and Children.

A correspondent of the Charlotte Observer writing of the management of the Cleveland cotton mills says that Maj Schenck, the proprietor, persuades rather than forces his operatives, and shows by his friendly interest and sympathy that he seeks their good as well as their own. This is true. We do not know a cotton mill management in North Carolina more humane and generous in its treatment of employes. In one of the mills there is a handsome library filled with books selected by Major Schenck, and comcomfortably furnished, for the personal use of the factory people. They are encouraged to run up to this library every leisure moment and enjoy the best and most wholesome literature. The best religious advantages are offered the factory population, and the proprietors associate in church work with the employes, teaching in the Sunday schools and leading in the prayer meeting. Besides the Baptist church to which the owners of the mill belong, there has been built another house where the employes of other denominations can worship under their own vine and fig tree, and all denominations find a cordial welcome as often as they can visit the villages. So far as we have seen the Cleveland mills are managed on the highest plane, and the employes are among the most thrifty and the happiest of any in North Carolina. When the day comes that cotton mill owners sympathize with and help their people as Major Schenck and his associates do, the problem now so threatening, of how to reach the factory people, will have been solved.

At the Boarding-house.

Baltimore American.

The conversation had assumed a literary vein when the dressmaker entered. The drug clerk, wishing to draw her into the discussion, asked:

"What do you think of 'Excelsior,' Miss Stitcher?"

"Oh, my!" she said; "Excelsior is out of date long ago. Braided wire is the favorite now."

As no one knew who wrote Braided Wire, the conversation went back to "Quo Vadis."

He Stood Corrected.

Baltimore American.

"Speaking of these Chinese trouble," began the heavy-set man, "I think that Li Hung Chang——"

"You're wrong," interrupted the frivolous youth, "he couldn't have hung him. Beheading is the only form of execution in China."

It Wouldn't Work.

Mr. Frog and Mrs. Mouse
Were wed in sunny weather,
And started out to find a home
Where they could live together.

The frog picked out a lily leaf
That spread upon the pool,
And thought that they could settle there
And always keep quite cool.

The field mouse, though, preferred a nest
Secure from every storm,
Down in the long, dry prairie grass,
Where they could keep quite warm.

O'er this they quarreled long and loud,
With many a croak and squeak,
Till each one rushed back home in rage,
And now they never speak.

A TIMID LION.

[A Story for Little Folk].

"Hush, he's coming!" said the brown buffalo.

"Quick, hide yourselves!" whispered the antelope.

"Now, Robinson, the matches! Quick!" chuckled the very small monkey. And Robinson the lynx pulled out his box of matches and, at a given signal, struck three or four together. At the same moment his three companions, Smith the buffalo, Jones the antelope and Brown the very small monkey, jumped from their hiding places and yelled and shouted and screamed and bellowed as loudly as they could.

There was a moment's pause, a roar of terror through the jungle, while the four conspirators threw themselves down on the ground and laughed until they could laugh no longer.

"Ho, ho, ho! Dear me, how my sides do ache!" gasped Jones the antelope. "How funny he did look!"

"Did you see his face?" said Smith the buffalo, as soon as he had breath to speak.

"And all at three or four matches! And he a lion, too! Oh dear, oh dear, what fun we are having!" And off went Robinson the lynx into another peal of laughter.

"We will just chaff young Jerry about this when we get hold of him," said the very small monkey.

But they did not get a chance to chaff the unhappy lion for some time, for he was very careful to keep well out of their way. As he ran away he had heard the mocking laughter of the four mischievous animals, and then he had realized, too, that once more his foolish fears had made him look ridiculous, and that he had been again the victim of a practical joke on the part of Smith, Brown, Jones and Robinson.

Poor Jerry! There was no doubt about it—he was very timid. He tried hard to overcome his nervousness, but it was of no use; the slightest noise made him start, the snapping of a twig made him tremble all over, and he would not have gone to bed by himself in the dark for worlds. And yet it was a light (or more particularly a fire) that frightened him more than anything.

Even now, when he knew that it was only some joke on the part of the four mischief-makers of the jungle, he was some time before he could collect his wits together or get his mane to lie down quite flat. And he knew that the story of his flight and terror would soon be all over the jungle (the very small monkey could be trusted for that), and he would be laughed at and pointed at by all the most insignificant jungle dwellers, and scolded once more by his father and mother.

He slunk away with his tail between his legs, and felt very sad indeed. He knew he was timid—no one knew better—and he didn't know how to cure himself. He was so much wrapped up in his own gloomy thoughts that he did not look very carefully where he was going, and he was therefore startled again when a sharp voice just above his head called out: "Now then! Do mind what you're doing, you great, clumsy, awkward, lumbering good-for-nothing!"

He looked up and saw an angry marmoset, chattering away very angrily and picking up nuts as fast as he could and popping them into a basket which he (Jerry) had evidently just knocked down with his tail.

"I—I beg your pardon, I am sure," he stammered.

"Much good that will do!" scolded the marmoset. "People are always ready to beg pardon; if they looked where they were going a bit more perhaps there wouldn't be so much need. But there, I've no patience with you great lubberly creatures; you take up so much room."

"I'm sure I wish I were small," sighed Jerry. "Perhaps I shouldn't be so timid then."

"Hey! What's that?" said the old marmoset, stopping in his task of picking up the nuts and looking sharply at the despondent Jerry.

"Oh, I'm such a coward, Mr. Montgomery" (that was the marmoset's name). "I'm afraid of the least little thing. I'm not nearly as brave as Tomkins the tiger, and he isn't nearly as big as I am. I wish I were more like him."

"Stuff and nonsense!" snapped the old marmoset, beginning to pick up nuts again. "He's a boaster, that's what he is. You're worth half a dozen of him, though that's not saying much. Don't you be a silly fellow! There's some people don't know what bravery is. You may be able to show 'em some day. Don't you take any notice of chaps like Tomkins, or Smith, or Jones, or Brown, or Robinson. They're not worth much!"

So, having picked up his nuts, he went on, leaving Jeremiah feeling a little more cheerful, but not very much. However, it was soon to be proved that the old marmoset was right after all.

When Jerry got home he saw directly that his family had already heard of the little affair of Robinson and the matches, and he was in deep disgrace all the evening. He went to bed very much depressed after a long lecture from his father, but very soon had forgotten his troubles in sleep.

In the middle of the night he was awakened by a strange smell, and, jumping out of bed, he saw a strange sight. There was a dull, red glare in the sky, and from one point there came rolling thick volumes of smoke. The jungle was evidently on fire!

For a moment Jerry was paralyzed with fright. If there was one thing more than another that he dreaded it was fire. For a moment he hesitated, then his mind was made up. He thought of the old marmoset's words. Perhaps he (Jeremiah) might show them that he was not such a coward after all!

He quickly put on his things and ran round calling up his family. In a few moments the whole household was aroused, and was busily engaged in picking up their belongings, for it was evident that it would not be safe to stay very long.

In the confusion Jerry, having seen that all was going on well and that he was no longer needed, slipped out quietly and started on his task of alarming the rest of the jungle dwellers.

Several of the jungle dwellers had already been awakened and were running helplessly to and fro in alarm, not knowing what to do. Jerry greeted them with a cheerful roar, assuring them that there was plenty of time, and they set to work to remove their things to a place of safety.

As he went on, however, he saw that the fire was gaining ground very rapidly, and that unless it was checked many of the houses would be in great danger of being burned before the inmates could get out.

Then it was that Jerry showed how brave he really was. Along with Mr. Montgomery, the old marmoset, who was working away with all his might, he went out to meet the advancing flames, determined to stop them, at least for a time.

Each of them was armed with a huge blanket which they had soaked with water, and they swung these to and fro and beat down the smouldering flames and the hot air was almost enough to stifle them.

But for a while their efforts checked the fire, and everything was going well, till, all of a sudden, they heard loud shouting and saw Jones the antelope and Brown the very small monkey standing on the roof of one of the houses almost surrounded by fire quite helpless and waving their arms to attract attention. Smith the buffalo and Robinson the lynx were down below, doing nothing but bellow and cry, and never attempting to assist their unfortunate comrades.

"Ha!" said the old marmoset, shaking his head; "I'm afraid it's all up with them! They can't be got down!"

"Why not?" said Jerry.

"Who'd do it?" asked Mr. Montgomery. "They're not worth risking anything for."

"Here, Tomkins! Catch hold of this blanket and do as Mr. Montgomery tells you," said the young lion, throwing his blanket to the tiger, who was standing shivering by. "I'm going after those fellows."

Before any one could stop him he had gathered himself together for a spring, and with one mighty bound was on the roof of the house beside the trembling Jones and Brown.

He made Brown cling around his neck, and then proceeded to tell Jones what he was to do. But Jones was quite out of his senses with fright, and could do nothing but sob and cry, "Oh, don't leave me! Don't leave me!"

At last Jerry lost all patience, and taking the antelope in his teeth by the scruff of his neck he sprang out again through the flames and landed with the two animals, scorched but safe, beyond the circle of the fire.

After this, owing to the energetic efforts of Mr. Montgomery and a few more, the fire was soon beaten back and finally extinguished, and, fortunately, no one was hurt.

But no one ever laughed at Jeremiah as a coward, although he never got over his nervousness.

WHY?

There are, if possible, ten thousand assertions about the dispensary; the majority of them are frivolous and childish, a large number are false, and still another large part of them are utterly insignificant. Our remarks are not addressed to the saloon keepers or to those who expect profit from the re-opening of the saloons; nor are they addressed to saloon loafers who naturally want to return to the old wallow, and neither yet are they addressed to those who through pride of opinion and hatred, close their eyes to argument. But they are addressed to those who are opposed to the dispensary through proper motives. These are the people we wish to talk to, and to try in all sincerity to see if they may not see it as we see it. To these, we take it, the ten thousand false, frivolous, or irrelevant things mentioned above are worthless, and that they wish to see the matter in the "dry light of reason."

To such persons there can be but one question, "Is a dispensary in Greensboro a better thing than eight or ten barrooms?" The assertion that the church has gone into the whiskey business is foolish. The church has been taking care of itself for nearly 2,000 years, and doesn't at this late day need the solicitous care of saloonists to guard its sanctity and keep the preachers' coat tails out of the mud, as so many of the whiskey advocates are now anxious to do. The fact that the dispensary borrowed $1700 to put in its inventory to balance against its stock in order to make an intelligible statement, when used by grown up men as an argument for the re-opening of saloons, is monkey gibberish. The assertion that the dispensary sells bad liquor, when given as a reason for the saloons to sell still worse, is the climax of littleness. All such frivolity does not touch the question. Thoughtful people will ask for facts and sensible argument on the question, and will not accept such dodging and haggling for sensible argument. So we come to our first WHY.

Why is it that the leading advocates of saloons don't quit snarling at the dispensary and give some argument for the saloons? They all content themselves with snapping at the dispensary and repeating over and over, as sweet morsels, the monkey gibberish about the church going into the liquor business, and the sanctity of the pulpit, and all such old chestnuts. If saloons are such good things, why don't their supporters stand to the rack and point out their good qualities? The dispensary supporters have the facts and figures to prove their assertions. Let the saloonists give proof of the good things that must come with the reopening of the barrooms. That is the way to present the case to thoughtful, reasonable people who want the truth. If the saloon people continue to haggle, and snarl, and beg the question, and beat the bush, and offer no argument, reasonable people are bound to conclude that they have none.

Let them quit "chewing the rag," and give us some argument. Let them tell how many people the re-establishment of saloons will benefit. Let them tell us how many lives will be made better and brighter and purer. Let them give us the number of homes that will be made happier and sweeter. Let them show us how many mothers will welcome the reopening of the saloons as a source of joy and comfort. Give us the number of young men who will be elevated and inspired to better things. Tell us how many men will be helped in business and in morals. Tell us how many children will be given more light and life and comfort and cheerfulness.

Let the saloonists stop their monkey gibberish and show up some facts in favor of their institutions. Why don't they?

The county candidates are now in the heat of the campaign. Democrats of the line should not allow them to do all the fighting. While they are doing the speaking, others should be talking and working in private, for, after all, here is where the work will be largely accomplished.

The Southsiders are the real folks.

CHARLOTTE BASEBALL TEAM.

The Resignation of Mr. Lucas Leaves it on the Mercy of the Public.

Correspondence of the Telegram

Charlotte, July 12.—The Charlotte baseball team is having to go through the deep waters in order to reach a solid foundation. The resignation of Mr. R. L. Lucas as manager, again throws the team on the mercies of whoever will come to its aid. The solution of the difficulty seems to have been discovered in the formation of the Charlotte Athletic Association which will take charge of the team. About $700 has been raised, and with the funds in prospect the association hopes to have no difficulty in keeping a good team in the field.

News reaches here that the next meeting of the State firemen will be held in Charlotte next year, the selection being made yesterday by the State firemen in session at Wilmington.

A big excursion of Baptists from Winston-Salem spent yesterday in the city. They brought down seven car loads.

In the game of baseball between Charlotte and Statesville here yesterday afternoon the home team was defeated by an overwhelming score of 5 to 1 in favor of Statesville. The visitors virtually won the game in the sixth inning, when they crossed the home-plate four times. Cuddy for Charlotte did some fine work on bases.

Score:		R	H	E
Statesville	100004000—5	10	1
Charlotte	000001000—1	8	2

Batteries: Fox and Bennett, McMahin and Oldham.

Charlotte plays in Wilmington Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

A HANDSOME BANKING HOUSE.

The Greensboro Loan and Trust Company to Erect a Building at an Early Date.

The Greensboro Loan and Trust Company has bought a lot just across the alley on the south side of the McAdoo House upon which a handsome banking house will be erected at an early date. The deal for the real estate has just been closed and a committee will go to work at once arranging for the erection of the building. A meeting will be held within the next few days, when architects will be invited to submit plans. Building operations will begin as early as possible after the plans are selected.

While nothing definite has been decided upon, no plans having been considered, it is understood that the new banking house will be an imposing three-story structure, with a basement. It will be constructed of the best material and will be a thoroughly modern and up-to-date building.

A better location could not have been selected in the city of Greensboro. In addition to being on the main thoroughfare, it is contiguous to the largeset wholesale and retail commercial houses in the city. The officers of the institution have had this lot in view ever since the organization of the Greensboro Loan and Trust Company, buying it at the first optunity.

She Made Scandalous Charges.

A jury at Philadelphia awarded Miss Laura Evans, a saleslady employed in John Wannamaker's store for 18 years, $12,000 damages, the full amount of her claim, $10,000, with interest from May 9, 1895, in her suit against Louisa M. Wright, also known as Louisa Wernie, a customer. It was a slander uttered by Miss Wright which caused the bother.

Charles C. Dupont has been refused a divorce by the New York courts. Dupont and his wife first met in a boarding-house in Philadelphia, Hallowe'en, 1896. A secret courtship followed. The secret became known, however, as secrets will. Then, according to Dupont's story, the dean of the university insisted upon his marrying the girl. Dupont married her.

Lessening the Deviltry of It.

Charity and Children.

The dispensary fight is on again in Greensboro and the issue will be decided at the polls on the 2nd of August, the day of the regular State election. We are an anxious onlooker with all our sympathy on the dispensary side, We do not care a button what the Baptist Courier nor any other South Carolinian says, the dispensary has lessened the deviltry of the traffic in Greensboro and we are for anything that curtails the evil. The best evidence of the good the dispensary has done is to be found in the fact that every liquor man in the city violently opposes it.

ANTI TAKES A TURN.

Contributes a Large Amount of Information Heretofore Wholly Unknown, Shedding Light Far and Wide—Cheerfully Proves His Own Character Good.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

In your yesterday's issue of the Telegram you ask some questions which it is natural to suppose that you wish answered, and if you will allow us the use of your columns to that extent we will endeavor to reply to same.

You start out by asking who is leading the opposing faction in the fight and then proceed to answer that question by placing the barkeepers on one side and the ministers on the other. Now the anti-dispensary forces object to your answer to this question as to both factions. As you have been a citizen of Greensboro only a few months you might be excused from making mistakes of this kind on the ground of ignorance, but for the fact that you have those about you who would give you any information you might require on such points, and it is your duty to avail yourself of this information before making such assertions.

The leaders of the anti-dispensary side are to some extent at least men of as good standing as there are in Greensboro, or for that matter, in the State. In their ranks are embraced ministers, lawyers, physicians, manufacturers, merchants, farmers, mechanics and others. As a matter of fact, the ex-bar-keepers have nothing to do with the management of the campaign, and if they are doing anything at all it is on their own responsibility. Now as to the leaders on your side. You say they are the ministers of the town. This assertion is as extravagant as the first one you made. Everybody knows who the dispensary leaders are. They consist of two lawyers and politicians, two real estate and insurance men, two lumber dealers, a hardware merchant, one bar-keeper, and the Telegram. You may have some preachers in your ranks—there were two, I believe, at your meeting in the court house Monday night, but your leaders are not all preachers, just yet.

Your next question is why the whiskey dealers, whom you unjustly call leaders of the movement, are moving heaven and earth to get the saloons back. I was not aware that the whiskey dealers were engaged in moving heaven and I have seen no signs of their moving earth, but if you wish to know why some of the business men of the town are opposed to the dispensary I will undertake to tell you. Because we think it is wrong for the town to go into the liquor business or other business which belongs to the individual. It is communistic and the outgrowth of Populism and Tillmanism and conservative North Carolinians will have none of it. They are opposed to it because it is a complete failure. It has done nothing its advocates claim for it, except to make money, and we are unwilling to embark our city in the liquor business for the sole purpose of making a profit. Greensboro cannot sell her birthright for such a mess of pottage. However, if the taxes imposed on saloons by our alderman were as high as that charged by Winston a greater revenue would be derived than under the dispensary system. We believe it to be detrimental to the business interests of our city. Greensboro has removed her swaddling clothes sometime since and desires to take her stand among the first cities of the South, in none of which you will find such a socialistic innovation as the dispensary system, except in South Carolina, which is under the domination of Tillman, who is as rank a Populiss as ever lived, although he professes to be a Democrat. We believe it to be a reflection on our people to say that they need a set of temperance straight-jackets to keep them sober. We are opposed to the dispensary because we think it is in opposition to the will of the majority of the people, as you will probably learn on the 2d day of August.

ANTI.

[We must regard the above as a valuable addition to the gaiety of the situation, and hope that "Anti" will write often. The discussion has taken too serious a turn anyway. The cheerful chirper who can show that there are preachers leading the side of the saloons and barkeepers leading the dispensary forces, is too valuable an acquisition to be lost in the shuffle. We invite him to come often and assure him of our willingness to do anything in our power to help him along as a funny man and as a freak worthy of any dime museum.—The Telegram.]

MR. P. W. PATTON FOR AMENDMENT.

Chairman of the Populist Party in Burke County is for White Supremacy.

Morganton Herald, 11th.

To the Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee:

I have been a Populist ever since there was a Populist party in North Carolina. For six years I have been chairman of the executive committee of said party in Burke county. Not since the civil war have the people of North Carolina had a more important issue to settle than the one now before them, to-wit: "White supremacy." I am a white man, and, therefore, not only believe in, but must support, the constitutional amendment. The leaders of my party have not only arrayed themselves against the said amendment, but are trying to force the rank and file of the party to follow them. Therefore, I intend to support the amendment, and since the Democratic party is the only party advocating it, consistency compels one to support the Democratic ticket.

P. W. PATTON,
Chairman P. P. Burke County.

A Nervy Idiot.

Charlotte Observer.

Peter Nissen, or, as he likes to call himself, "Mr. Bowser," is a rather more interesting asst han we rnn across every day in the week. He seems to know this himself and quite appropriately named the curious craft, with which he succeeded in navigating the whirlpool rapids at Niagara, the "Foolkiller." He went into the perilous pool with a derby hat and a debonnaire manner, but when he came out he had lost his derby but still retained his debonnaire. We can honor an Andree, who sails off in a baloon to find the North Pole, because the Pole is something we really have to have, sooner or later, don't you know, just to slake our thirst for knowledge. But we have little sympathy for the fellows who walk ropes over Niagara or attempt to navigate the whirlpool rapids below it, because they add nothing te the sum of human knowledge or happiness but only arouse in men a morbid curiosity and thirst for the impossible. But we are glad Mr. Bowser didn't get killed for he seems to be a nice and nervy idiot.

A Little List.

Springfield Republican.

It is a patriotic duty to place before the public a list of of the entries in the Presidential race of 1900, so far as it is now made up. There is every disposition manifested in the United States to afford the voter a wide range of choice, as the list amply proves. The candidates thus far named, with their parties, are:

Republican—William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

Democratic—William J. Bryan and A. E. Stevenson.

Populist—William J. Bryan and Charles A Towne.

Silver Republican—William J. Bryan and A. E. Stevenson.

Prohibition—John G. Wooley, of Illinois, and H. B. Metcalf, of Rhode Island.

Populist (middle of the road)—Wharton Barker, of Pennsylvania, and Ignatius Donnelly, of Minnesota.

United Christian—Rev. F. E. Clark, of Massachusetts, and Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, of Kansas.

Socialist Labor—Job Harriman, of California, and Max S, Hayes, of Ohio.

Social Democrat—Eugene V. Debs, of Indiana, and Job Harriman, of California.

De Leon Socialist—J. F. Maloney, of Massachusetts, and Valentine Remmill, of Pennsylvania.

It is too early to say that the list is now complete. On almost any street car men can be heard saying that there is no candidate up whom they want to vote for. There are two more possible entries, from the Gold Democrats and the Anti-Imperialistic Gold Standard Republicans.

Any man can get through the hot season a great deal more comfortably with light weight tan or black vici shoes and thin, light weigh underwear. We can supply you with both at very moderate prices.

BIG JACK AND TAD.

"Tad sat upon a pile of baggage lazily swinging his feet and waiting till his train was ready to start on its long night trip across the country, when among the last straggling shoppers he saw a tall, pleasant-faced looking man walking leisurely toward the train with a swing that made "Tad" think at once he must surely have been a railroad man.

Just then the engineer came up along the train with a bit of yellow tissue paper, on which was written his orders, fluttering in his hand, and "Tad," spoke to him pleasantly, for the newsboy and the engineer had become very good friends, but this night "Big Jack" seemed out of humor about something, and only glared at "Tad" as he passed on without a word. "Tad" felt a curious shiver as the engineer looked at him. There was something queer in the glowing eyes that he had never seen there before. It was not drink, for "Big Jack" did not touch a drop. He had no further time to think of this for the conductor called, "All aboard!" and "Tad" swung on the smoker platform just as the big drive wheels of the engine began to turn. He was just smiling to himself over a nice warm coat for mother, a set of books for Mary and a rifle Hal had wished for ever so long, when the train which had seemed to be slowing down came to a sudden stop while at the same time a smothered cry came from up ahead.

The passengers sprang to their feet in excitement, windows were hastily opened and a babel of voices was asking what the trouble was. They were in the country, near a lonely woods, and there could be no cause for stopipng unless it was an accident or—Hal's heart gave a jump as the thought came to him—a "hold-up."

"Hal's rifle!" The idea came to him like a flash, and he hastily lfted the lid of the box in which his stock of goods was carried and lifted out the shining weapon. It was a repeater, and but a moment was required to fill the magazine with cartridges. "Tad" had seen to that himself. He hurried out with it and swung to the ground. Quick as he was, several men were already on their way to the engine, where there was a flare of lanterns and the sound of confused voices.

Running up he found "Big Jack" standing on the ground beside the engine, his cap off and his hair tumbled, his eyes glaring and flecks of foam on his lips, holding a heavy club in his hand and daring any one to approach the engine.

"Stand back!" the engineer was saying. "I'm going to blow her up! There's a full fire under her, and the safety valve's fastened down! She's been sizzin' in my ears every night for years, an' it's got nto my head till I can't sleep no more! I'm a-goin' to blow her up! Hear her singin'! That's old Four-Eleven's death song!"

Big Jack had gone mad. Night after night he had run the fast express, till at last his nerves had given out, and he had gone raving crazy. The fire was roaring under the boiler, and every one near enough to know what was being done was afraid to approach. A low moan from the cab attracted Tad's attention, and he saw the fireman lying on the floor with an ugly cut in his head. Just then the tall man Tad had noticed at the depot came out of the crowd and started to climb on the engine.

(I don't want to shoot you, Jack.)

"Get out o' that!" roared the engineer, "or I'll brain you. No man shall touch my engine. She'll bust in a minute now!"

The stranger reached back with a quick movement to his hip pocket, but it was empty. Tad had taken this all in and run back to a group of men, from the mail and baggage cars, with whom he whispered a moment and then came back to where the engineer and the stranger stood glaring at each other.

"Jack," he said, stepping boldly in front of the engineer, "you know me don't you?"

The crazed engineer glared at him stupidly for a moment.

"She'll bust up in just about a minute more," he said.

"But look here Jack, won't you run the train on as far as Hazlewood for us before you blow up the engine?"

"She's goin' to bust up in just about a minute more," Big Jack said again, slowly, then a savage gleam came into his eyes and he raised his club. 'No you don't," he screamed, as he saw the stranger again edging near the step to the cab. Another moment he would have sprang past the boy and would have felled the stranger, but "Tad" raised the rifle to his shoulder with a sharp "click" of the hammer that for a moment stopped the madman. "I don't want to shoot you, but if I have to I'll do it, Jack," he said.

It was only for an instant that this threat held the reckless maniac, but that instant was long enough, for he was suddenly seized from behind by the mail and baggage clerks and in spite of his struggles was quickly thrown to the ground and overpowered. The stranger was already in the cab and shouting to the conductor to get his passengers aboard quickly, and in a few seconds more the pent-up steam was roaring through the whistle and safety valve.

There was too much noise to hear anything, but "Tad" saw the stranger motion to him and jumped up in the cab.

"You'll have to stay and help me fire," said the stranger. "I know I can depend on you." The man had already thrown his coat and hat upon the seat and then they helped the baggage men lift the fireman off the cab.

Another minute and they were tearing again upon their way, while the whistle still screamed with the surplus steam.

"It was a close call," said the stranger, who seemed to handle the valves and levers as if he knew and loved every one of them. "Another half a dozen seconds and we might have been blown into eternity. You saved us those seconds, my boy."

"Tad" was too busy to answer. He was a strong, well-knit lad, and he was shoveling coal with a will under the stranger's directions. Pretty soon the stranger said, with a sigh:

"Old four eleven. I used to run this engine myself, years ago."

There was nothing more said until they reached a little station this side of Hazelwood, when the fireman, who had only been stunned and had recovered, though his head was bound up, came forward to take his place, and Tad asked permission to go back and pack up, as he would not be needed, and he wished to get off at home.

"Certainly," said the stranger; "but wait a minute. I have a little present for you. Oh, take it, my boy, you've earned it." And he thrust a bill into Tad's hand, a bill with a large figure in the corner, too. "Here's my card, too," he added. "When you get back to the city come to my office. I want to see you. I like your grit."

Tad shoved the card in his pocket, for there was but very little time, and he had to hurry with his packing. But when he read it at home he found that the strange "engineer" for whom he had been firing was none other than the president of the road, and Tad's career from that time on may be easily guessed at.

Cruel.

"How can you object to my fiance? He is chivalry itself. The first time he met me he told me I was the most beautiful and most interesting girl in New York."

"And you would trust your life to a man who lies to you as shamelessly as that at the very beginning of your acquaintance!"—New York World.

THEIR OWN MIXTURES.

Smokers Who Have Tobacco Compounded to Suit Their Tastes.

The young and inexperienced are ever ready to smile incredulously at the seasoned smoker who offers his tobacco pouch with the remark, "Try some of my own mixture." In some cases "my own mixture" may only be the smoker's "own" in the sense that he has paid for a few ounces of it, but, in spite of the prevalence of copyrighted and much advertised special mixtures in these latter days, it seems, from what one of the most popular downtown tobaccoists says, that the habit of buying one's own excclusive "mixture" is not so extinct as might be supposed.

"Here is a list of the special mixtures we make," said this authority, taking from a corner a large card. "You see, there are about fifty of them on this card. Each mixture is noted down, all the ingredients and the proportions in which they are to be used, and over each one is the name of the customer who first ordered it. The way of it is that a smoker makes his experiments on different combinations of tobacco until he hits upon something which just suits him. Sometimes he buys the ingredients and mixes them himself, but people have so much to do nowadays that more often they tell us what they want and we do the mixing. It takes weeks sometimes for a customer to get to just what he is aiming at, and, of course, it is all guesswork in the meantime.

"But you might be surprised to know how long a man will go on using the same mixture once he has found what suits him. This first name on the list does not belong to the mixture we have been making the longest; it comes first because the list is alphabetically arranged, but that recipe has been standing there for ten years to my knowledge. It was first ordered by an Englishman; his name still goes with it, and he is still using it, but scores of other people also use it who have never heard of him.

"So, you see, it is possible for a man to be using another man's 'particular mixture,' and go on using it for years, thinking it is his own exclusive mixture all the time. The way some of these mixtures gain popularity shows that it isn't quite exactly true that there are as many different tastes as tongues, for sometimes what exactly suits one man seems exactly to suit a hundred others. When we find a mixture becoming widely popular we sometimes make it up in quantities, but only rarely. And that, I suppose, is how new 'mixtures' get put on the market."—N. Y. Tribune.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

WE ARE ORIGINATORS:

Not Imitators!

White Delivery Wagons have been a distinguishing mark of the Greensboro Steam Laundry for a number of years. Our customers have learned to "look out for the white wagons."

Competitors have seen fit to imitate our wagons, therefore we deem it wise to make a change.

Our wagons are now in the shop. About May 1st they will come out green, our forme color. In the mean time would respectfullly request our friends and patrons ta BEWARE of the white laundry wagons and see to it that the right driver gets the bundle. To avoid any possible confusion, in future our wagons will be lettered.
